Year 6 Create Home Learning - 13th July

Choose three of these creative homework activities to do this week.

I have made many videos over the past few months. The purpose of them has been to let you know which work I would like you to do. However, a big priority has been to make something that will make you laugh.

Have a go at creating your own comedy video. You could download one of the many free apps like iMovie to put different clips together and add sound effects.

You are going to make a parachute that can stop an egg from breaking when you drop it from above your head.

See if you can do it using materials that you have around your house (plastic bag, string, selotape, paper).

Film the evidence and upload it onto ClassDojo.

One of the things I loved (and still love to do) when I was younger was make paper aeroplanes.

Use the internet to find different ways of making paper aeroplanes and then have a go at deciding which you think is the best.

Think back to the different science topics we have looked at this year (classification, adaptation, human body, light and shadows) and create a quiz to test someone else's knowledge on these areas.

Whilst you have spent a lot of time indoors over the past few months, have you come up with any of your own games?

If yes, could you write down instructions, or make an instructional video to share with others about how to play your game?

Many holidays have obviously been cancelled over the past few months, but will hopefully be able to start again soon.

Choose a holiday destination that you have been to, or one that you have always wanted to go, and create either a leaflet encouraging people to go, or a video where you use images from that country and do a voiceover.
